Report RUN 1503

Duckhead's Spring Freeze Run – Gungahlin - 28 September 2009

As per normal, only the hardiest of hounds ventured to the northern fringe of Canberra on a night when Spring temperatures had reverted to those of Winter. Even the GM and RA failed to make an appearance, although they will undoubtedly have some lame excuse to justify their absence next time they turn up. A police patrol cruised the carpark before the run without bothering to query the presence of the group of shivering hashers huddling together wishing the fire bucket could be lit before rather than after the run. It was a small pack of just over 20 that was headed out by stand in GM, Meat, having nominated me as the run reporter by way of a welcome back after an absence of a few weeks enjoying the wonderful warmth of a Queensland Spring. Thankfully the hare had laid the trail away from the lake and into suburbia which lessened the chill factor somewhat. His innuendo (not an Italian suppository!) about things that go up also having to come down, mentioned in the run preamble, proved to be a modest rise towards the end of the trail that the wily back of the pack managed to circumvent, i.e. shortcut around. The trail proved to be well marked with a liberal sprinkling of checks and a port wine and lemonade drink stop, which all the pack managed to find. On Home was inevitably along the breezy lake side but Mixo soon had the fire bucket alight and the GM pro tem didn't waste time in calling the circle together.

While heaping liberal praise on the hare for his trail setting prowess it became obvious from the beam on his face that "he who does everything" would become insufferable if it was accorded a commensurate score. On that basis I reduced it to 2 out of 10 but subsequently bumped it up to 3 on account of the hot and copious hash mash he served up. He and I shared down down drinks and I was immediately recalled to join fellow returnees Baaaarbaara and Fit For Riding for another. Awards being called, ever hopeful Gerbils sought to offload the FRB award on interim GM, Meat. Predictably he failed in the attempt and despite his protestations and some too'ing and fro'ing about other likely recipients ended up keeping it for another week. Scarlet introduced Spanky the monkey into the equation and when he couldn't offload him onto Big Boy succeeded in passing him to 12 Step.

The Hare charged Baaaarbaara, a walker, with scoffing most of the chateau cardboard port at the drink stop before the pack arrived obliging said Hare to bring forth from his cellar a bottle of port of more dubious provenance. Baaaarbaara returned the charge berating Duckhead for providing hash mash he cooked himself when he shares digs with a professional chef who could have provided us with far more exotic fare. No further charges forthcoming Hash Cash, Soft Centre, was called on for birthday and anniversary details. Big Boy and Felloffa were nominated as suitable look-alikes for birthday celebrants All Day Sucker and Frizzie Lizzy. Anniversary run down downs were awarded to Friskies (double figures - 10), Hello Kitty (voting age - 18) and yours truly (the devil knows why - 666). Fictitious records were fabricated for Scarlet and Baaaarbaara so they could down the last two drinks. The whole proceedings were recorded for posterity by relief Hash Flash, JR; Meat being fully occupied controlling the circle. There was no cracker-of-the-week since Crackers has apparently fled our shores so that he won't be around to cop the flack when the Eels drop the ball in the Grand Final this Sunday.
