Run 1530 , Monday 12 April 2010

Hare: Duckhead Mick - Location: Gungahlin Town Park

Run Reporter: Poo Shooter

Details of Run: A good sized pack had driven to Yass Gunghalin town centre for Duckhead's run. High expectations had been set by Duckheads previous performance of doing everything for the Hash Group – the jury was out as to whether these expectations had been met.

Gunghalin had threatened to disappoint from it's normal unnecessarily hot or cold weather that the hash group has come to expect from previous trips to the north of the state.

After a wave of the hand from the hare in the directly of some poor unsuspecting local's house, the pack headed off in the direction of said house, only to find that the hare had been somewhere between 45 and 90° out in the actual direction of the path.

Luckily for all of the hash athletes, Poo Shooter was in attendance and was able to immediately locate the trail from the first break. Poo Shooter, keen to hold up the traditions held by Duckhead as the person who does everything briefly left his role as FRB to go back to the roundabout to mark the direction of the trail.

From the roundabout we headed on in to Gunghalin town centre, where a local dog was spotted who would fit right in the with the hash – he demonstrated his ability to both run and piss at the same time.....

SUBSTANTIAL confusion was created in Gunghalin town centre by a threeway which indicated directions other than in which the trail went..... Luckily Poo Shooter was there to find the trail for the remainder of the pack who were suffering from a case of hash confusion, as per previous efforts the role of FRB was temporarily relinquished to allow the trail to be back marked for those who were lagging a little.

From the Gunghalin town centre, the trail headed into suburban Gunghalin. A hash halt allowed the cripples and slow bastards to rejoin the group, and allowed the pack to reflect on the somewhat temperate weather which was currently being experienced in Gunghalin, and how it was very different to what was normally experience and expected while on this part of the globe.

Once we got sick of waiting, some exploring was done to find the direction of the trail, and once again Poo Shooter was to be the saviour of the group finding the correct direction for the trail to go in and marking it.

From the HHH it was onwards to what can only be described as a monumental hash balls up with the stragglers looking for direction and leadership from those up the front of the pack. Friskies was seen wandering around attempting to lead some female hashers astray and asking for assistance from a mysterious person named Nick... At this point in time it was noted that very poor leadership was shown by the front of the pack, and even less from the Hash Horn. Confusion was in control for some time before Poo Shooter took the lead and headed off to find the trail which for the record headed into Forde and onto another marking designed to both confuse and hold up the pack.

At this marking Greased Nipple was challenging Poo Shooter for the chance to set the pack in the right direction, his enthusiasm was somewhat tempered by the lack of battery power from the AA's in his headtorch, which were simply allowing him to follow the trail set by others. Once again, the trail was blazed by Poo Shooter who found the trail and clearly called this to the other hashers, who happily followed.

Another HHH followed at the bottom of the next hill where the group gathered to consider their next movements. As with the previous requirements for direction setting Poo Shooter took advice from Mixo and went in the opposite direction, enabling the pack to be quickly on their way to the drink stop in the southern suburbs of Sydney.

After winding our way through the suburbia of Gunghalin, a drink stop was located on the Northern shores of Yerrabi pond with a substantial risk taken by the hare. The history of the pack with Gunghalin of either heat or cold was gambled on, with only adequate cover at the drink stop for the drink (which was a very pleasant mix of port and lemonade...) Luckily for the hare it all worked out with the weather being fine and very comfortable, otherwise he may have had to add drying of hair to his already substantial repertoire of skills previously demonstrated at the hash.....
